Q: How to create IOS app version for distribution in TestFlight? I'm new to iOS development. I have developed an app. It contain some images and videos that are much large. It is working fine on device. How to create version for iOS App Store distribution in TestFlight using Xcode. When I try to create a new archive it says Application Size for an Archive is not supported. A: No, you cannot create an iOS App Store version. You need to upload the binary to AppStore in order to get it reviewed and registered by Apple. Moreover you are not allowed to upload large files directly to AppStore in order to provide users a smooth App Store experience. F. Gross, Phys. Rev. C [45] (1992) 2094. J. J. Sakurai and D. What's New in the Photoshop 2021 (Version 22.4.1)?

This invention relates to the preparation of diluents for certain water soluble polymers and, more particularly, to the preparation of diluents for certain water-reducible polymers useful in coating compositions containing water-reducible polymers. High molecular weight water-reducible polymers can be mixed with water and applied to a substrate to form coatings. When the coatings are subjected to aqueous environments, the coatings swell and the polymers are "broken" to form low molecular weight materials. This breaking of the polymers is a gelation process. Coatings formed from the high molecular weight polymers that are in the "low molecular weight" state are water-insoluble. If the coating is applied to a metal surface, the coating's hardness and strength are reduced as the water-reducible polymer "breaks". Although the preparation of polymeric coatings from high molecular weight, water-reducible polymers is known, the preparation of diluents for these high molecular weight polymers is not completely satisfactory. Water-reducible polymers can contain functional groups that are reactive with water. These functional groups include hydroxyl groups, amino groups, acid groups and the like. The functional groups are reacted with a cross-linking agent to form a cross-linking network. Although these functional groups generally can be incorporated into the coatings formed from these polymers, problems can be created by such incorporation of functional groups. For example, water-soluble functional groups can be incorporated into the coating; however, due to the relatively high temperatures that are generally employed in preparing polymeric coatings from high molecular weight polymers, the coatings can change to water-insoluble and non-reactive species. Other functional groups can be incorporated into the coating. However, the functional groups can be present in an amount that can produce a coating with decreased film formation, decreased coating hardness and/or decreased weatherability. It would be desirable if the problems described above could be overcome. It would be desirable if there were provided a diluent for the preparation of coatings having improved film formation, hardness and/or weatherability. It would also be desirable if there were provided a diluent that could be used in the preparation of coatings from water-soluble polymers that does not adversely affect these properties. The foregoing patents reflect the state of the art of which the applicant is aware and are tendered with the view toward discharging
